TOKYO

Tokyo is the capital of Japan and the political, economic and cultural center of Japan. About 14 million people live in Tokyo, which is about 2,193 km².

SHINAGAWA

Shinagawa once flourished as the first post station along the Tokaido road, now attracts attention as a major business area in Tokyo.

CURRENCY

The unit of Japanese currency is Yen (¥). Coins are available in denominations of ¥1, ¥5, ¥10, ¥50, ¥100 and ¥500 and bank notes in denominations of ¥1,000, ¥2,000, ¥5,000 and ¥10,000.

You can buy Yen at foreign exchange banks (Bank of Mitsubishi UFJ (MUFG), Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation (SMBC), etc.) and money exchangers (Travelex, Greenport Agency (GPA), etc.). Regarding money exchanger at the airport, please see the following website; Credit, debit and prepaid cards of international brands like American Express, JCB, Mastercard, Visa, Discover and Diners Club are generally accepted throughout the country. However, there will be instances where credit cards etc. can't be used at some small stores etc., so it may be safer to bring cash along with credit cards etc. Also there will be instances where stores may not display the symbols of the cards they accept, so ask the salesperson if you can use your card. If you are uncomfortable carrying a large amount of cash with you, another option is to purchase a Suica card or Pasmo card. These cards aren't simply for using the trains—you can use them on many other forms of public transport, as well as at convenience stores, and an increasing number of shops and restaurants. While they can't be used everywhere, they can be a useful alternative to carrying cash.

CLIMATE

In Japan, there is a season called “Tsuyu”, which means “rainy season”. It starts from the southernmost tip of Japan in Okinawa at the beginning of May, and slowly moves north over the rest of Japan in June. Hokkaido, at Japan's northern end, is barely affected by the rainy season. Tsuyu lasts until mid-July. There are many cloudy and rainy days in most of Japan during this period. An average temperature is 28°C and the highest temperature will usually reach 35°C in July. We recommend that you come with light and breathable clothing. In addition, it is recommended to bring something to keep warm, since it may be cold in the venue.

ELECTRICITY

The voltage used throughout Japan is uniformly 100 volts, A.C. The frequency in use in eastern Japan, including Tokyo, is 50 hertz. In Japan, 2-flat-pin plugs (type A) are used. There are no columnar-shaped plugs or 3-pin plugs. Please bring converters and adapters with you as needed.

WATER

While tap water is safe to drink in Japan, bottles of mineral water will be provided in the meeting rooms regularly.
